By Leianne Neff Heppner,
Executive Director, Summit County
Historical Society, Akron

A highlight of the Ohio Local History Alliance Annual Meeting is always Saturday's Awards Luncheon. The luncheon recognizes the outstanding local history work being done throughout the state through the presentation of OLHA's Outstanding Achievement Awards. History Outreach Awards recognize outstanding local history projects in three categories: media and publications, exhibits/displays, and public programming. Individual Achievement Awards recognize those who have made outstanding contributions to Ohio's local history organizations or to the understanding and appreciation of state and local history. This year's 16 winners provide inspiring ways to connect and educate Ohioans with their history.

History Outreach Awards, Organizations with Budget Under $25,000

Media and Publications, What's Cookin'? Historical Cookbook, Alliance Historical Society, Alliance:

In an effort to garner community involvement to preserve local history through food and photographs, a dedicated group of volunteers found a way to raise funds through the production of this cookbook.

The book records history and stories of families, businesses, and organizations that make Alliance unique. Alliance Historical Society volunteers reached out to local government, schools, and ethnic groups in the community to provide recipes from Alliance's past so that new generations will know this history of their hometown.

Media and Publications, Keepers of the Crossroads: An Oral History of the BF Tower Operators, Bradford, Ohio Railroad Museum, Bradford: The ever smaller numbers of living railroaders prompted the Bradford, Ohio Railroad Museum to reach out to local individuals to preserve their knowledge and recognize their contributions to local rail operations. Using footage of Penn Central trains in operation and the BF Tower, the only remaining structure to visually tell the story of the massive rail operation that went through the center of Bradford, filmmaker Michael Schneider edited historic and current footage featuring the role of the tower, its operators, and signal maintainers in the community. Oral histories of the men who worked the rails bring video to life.

Media and Publications, "Erie County & the Civil War: Monthly Articles in the Sandusky Register," Erie County Civil War Sesquicentennial Committee, Sandusky: Eight committee members and four guest writers have been working since Article topics have included local politics, the Underground Railroad, Erie County soldiers' battlefield experiences, the women's Soldiers Aid Society, and Johnson's Island Confederate Prison. Their efforts will continue until 2015, culminating with the anniversary of the assassination of President Abraham Lincoln. Over 23,000 people read these articles every month.

Media and Publications, At War and At Home: Vietnam Veteran's Oral Histories, Walsh University Office of Service Learning, North Canton: During the spring 2012 semester, Professor Kelly Selby of Walsh University's Department of History led thirteen undergraduate students in an oral history project to document a history of the war. President's Message:

It has been my great honor to serve the Ohio Local History Alliance as president over the last year. I thought it would be a good time to reflect on all that we have accomplished in the past year. In March, the board gathered together for a strategic planning retreat. We worked on crafting the results of that fruitful day into a strategic plan, which was adopted at our August meeting.

After many years of talking and dreaming about it, we were thrilled to offer two scholarships to the Alliance Annual Meeting. We know that professional development funds are very limited across the state, but we also know the value of spending time networking and soaking up new ideas. Congratulations to the inaugural winners, Dayle Deardurff of The Betts House and Dana Best-Mizsak of The Bedford Historical Society. We are looking forward to continuing to award these scholarships in years to come.

This summer we were very pleased to host an Ohio Local History Alliance intern! Katherine Buckingham was based in the Local History Office at the Ohio History Center and spent three months hard at work on our website and social media outlets. A thoughtfully crafted job description and our strategic plan helped guide Katherine's work, and our entire membership will benefit from our greatly enhanced website.

Each of the committees and the board at large has been hard at work all year and has great things planned for the year ahead. Keep an eye on The Local Historian, the Local History E-Blasts, and our Facebook page for all of the latest updates!

interviewed 26 veterans who represented the United States Army, Air Force, Navy, and Marine Corps. To complete their work, the students printed a book and gave a public presentation. At the end of the presentation, with 19 veterans in attendance, one stood and thanked the students because it was the first time he had been recognized for his service in Vietnam.

Public Programming, "Native American Experience and Native American Gathering with Speaker Dr. Herman Viola," Shelby County Historical Society, Sidney: Shelby County native Martin Tall Horse Chambers contacted the SCHS to suggest a program to honor Native American military veterans. Unfortunately, Mr. Chambers lost his battle to cancer before seeing his dream come to fruition. His wife, Mary, then assisted the SCHS as they reached out to local students and residents to host displays, exhibits, and a special presentation by Dr. Herman Viola, Curator Emeritus of the Smithsonian National Museum of Natural History, an expert on Native American history.

History Outreach Awards, Organizations with Budget Over $25,000

Media and Publications, From Servitude to Service: The Story of the Hanby Family, Westerville Historical Society and Brainstorm Media, Westerville: This new film examines Bishop William Hanby's role in the Underground Railroad and his son, Benjamin's, contributions to Civil War-era music. The script was written with help from local history organizations and local historians in places the Hanby family lived in Ohio. The Otterbein Vocal Ensemble and local musician Steve Ball also collaborated by performing the film's music. Fittingly, the final work premiered at the Westerville United Methodist Church which was the original location of the Hanby House.

Exhibits and Displays, "Kent State May 4 Visitors Center Exhibit Fabrication and Dedication," Kent State University, Kent: This exhibit commemorates May 4, 1970 when the Ohio National Guard and Kent State students clashed during an anti-Vietnam War protest. Working to set accurate 1960s historical, social, and cultural contexts, the exhibit features vibrant colors of the period highlighting timelines and text blocks. Historic images, statistics, and videos provide tactile stimulants to engage the visitor. The voices of the 13 students shot by the Ohio National Guardsmen are expressed throughout the exhibit. Visitors may add their own stories as part of the experience.

Exhibits and Displays, Wyandot County on the Lincoln Highway, Wyandot County Historical Society, Upper Sandusky:

To celebrate the 100th anniversary of the Lincoln Highway, the Wyandot County Historical Society documented this historic road's route through the county. Local residents shared their stories and loaned personal artifacts. All fabrication was done in-house. The exhibit's themes included: origins of the Lincoln Highway, mapping, paving, marking, tourism, and modernizing. Nearly 1,500 visitors have viewed the exhibit, including visitors on the Ohio Lincoln Highway Historic Byway. The project has raised awareness of local history and produced great publicity for the museum.

Public Programming, "Where in the World is Bing," Dennison Railroad Depot Museum, Dennison:

Looking to capture the interest of children and their parents and to relate the education and historical work of the museum, the Dennison Railroad Depot created a historical four-legged mascot to brand itself. Bing, a military dog who served in World War I, was a true hero in the local Company H. Using historic photographs and artifacts, such as his helmet, cap, and dog tags, "Where in the World is Bing?" provides children with an interactive activity while visiting the site.

Public Programming, "SimMarch 1812,"

Fort Meigs, Perrysburg: Fort Meigs sits on its original location of its construction during the War of 1812. The Fort Meigs Association wrote a grant to the Martha Holden Jennings Foundation to establish a program that would assist teachers and engage students in technology rich activities, while providing real world scenarios from diaries of the fort's 1812 servicemen. The final product, SimMarch 1812, is an iPad app with problem-based learning activities. A historical interpreter dressed as a War of 1812 soldier visits the classroom leading his fellow "messmates" on a march, while integrating STEM fields (science, technology, engineering, and math) with historical content.

Public Programming, Marble Hall Historic Marker, Wilmington College History Department, Wilmington: Marble Hall, a Wilmington College dormitory, was constructed after World War II with half its value donated by student labor. Sixty years later, Ruth Brindle's historical research methods class researched the building's history to gain practical research experience. This research was compiled into an Ohio Historical Marker application. The college and community came together to dedicate the marker, connect with alumni, especially those involved in the building, and boost a community dealing with economic hardship.

Public Programming, "Fresh Fish to the Front: A Readers' Theater Commemorating the 95th Ohio Volunteer Infantry," Kelton House, Columbus:

Under the leadership of Leslie Blankenship, the Kelton House Museum partnered with the Westerville Local History Center and the Ohio Village Singers for a program commemorating this unit of local men who transformed from "fresh fish" (new soldiers) to seasoned veterans in 11 days after entering service in the Civil War. Using primary sources, an illustrative presentation was composed for costumed readers to perform, accompanied by music and song.

Public Programming, "Underground Railroad Experience," Spring Hill Historic Home, Massillon:

Established in 1811 by New England Quakers, Spring Hill was a wool farm that became a refuge for those seeking freedom on the Underground Railroad. Visitors to the home experience a firsthand, interactive recreation of a day at Spring Hill in the 1800s. They travel with a "slave" on an escape to Canada on a trail where they encounter numerous people and situations along the way. With elements for children and adults, this program inspires an intergenerational dialogue about slavery that connects the past to the present in a real setting.

The Alliance would like to thank the members of its Advocacy Committee who served as judges for this year's awards.

Individual Achievement Awards

Donald Barriball, Chagrin Falls Historical Society, Chagrin Falls:

Donald Barriball has been described as a "local history gem" and the "epitome of the local history volunteer." He has used his knowledge of Northeast Ohio to write and publish five local history books and has donated all proceeds to the Chagrin Falls Historical Society. Mr. Barriball serves as a docent every Thursday at the society's museum, and he also writes articles for the historical society newsletter and website. In addition, he serves on the society's advisory council and publication committee, chairs its building and grounds committee, and he assists with the digitization and identification of the organization's 6,000 images.

Anne Benston, Clark County Historical Society, Springfield:

As a decades-long volunteer and board member of the Clark County Historical Society, Anne Benston is a true treasure in the community. Her work transcribing gravestones for 47 local cemeteries and writing biographies of these individuals has helped preserve local history for future generations. Mrs. Benston has also contributed to numerous other local history projects over the years including: assisting in the restoration of the Clark County Historical Society's Crabb House, serving on the local Bicentennial Commission and Springfield Statue Advisory Committee, and researching local Revolutionary War soldiers, industrial barons, and immigrants.

David L. Mowery, Ohio Civil War Trail Commission, Cincinnati:

David Mowery has contributed many years of volunteer work dedicated to making Civil War history come alive in Ohio, especially stories of John Hunt Morgan's raid. His endless dedication to researching diaries, letters, and memoirs, reading old newspapers and maps, and using Google Earth led him to reproduce an accurate route of Morgan's raid in Ohio that is now known as the John Hunt Morgan Heritage Trail. He was responsible for the placement of 644 directional signs and 56 interpretive markers in 19 counties. ■

TECH TIP:

By Jenni Salamon, Project Coordinator, National Digital Newspaper Program in Ohio, Ohio Historical Society

From Film to Digital Part III: Launching Your Own Newspaper Digitization Project

The last two issues of The Local Historian featured articles about newspaper digitization, and, if you had not done so already, may have prompted you to ask: "Can my institution get our community's newspapers digitized and available online? If so, where do we start?" Accomplishing your goal of digitizing newspapers begins with careful planning, and here are some tips to get you started. Your responses to the questions and comments below will greatly impact your choice of vendors, project costs, and the appearance and utility of your final digital collection.

Goals

Before you even look at your newspaper collection, determine why it is important for your newspapers to be digitized. This type of project involves time and funding, so make sure that it aligns with your institutional mission. If it does, next consider what you want the end goal of the project to be. How does your ideal digital collection look and function when it is finished?

Content

Due to the sheer volume of content, it is not likely that you will be able to digitize your entire newspaper collection at one time. How do you choose which newspaper(s) and date range(s) to digitize? Consider what is important to your users and community, as well as your institutional goals. If you select something that is important to multiple groups or stakeholders, you may be able to partner with them and share project costs.

Access & Sustainability

One of the most exciting parts of digitization is the ease of access, and, with newspapers, this often refers to two features of the digital collection: 1) keyword searchability and 2) online availability. If these features are important to you, does your institution have a digital library platform in place to serve content to your users? If not, does your digitization vendor provide hosting services?

Whether your hosting solution is in-house or vendor-provided, make sure it is sustainable. Can your institution maintain the costs (staff, information technology, storage space, etc.) to maintain your system? Can your vendor provide reliable, ongoing access? Will your vendor provide you with copies of all the digital files in case you need and/or want to repurpose them into a different access system into the future? By planning ahead, you will be more likely to recover if something happens to your or your vendor's hosting system.

Digital Deliverables & Vendors

Your product is also affected by the digitization standards you use. Using the archival standards established by the National Digital Newspaper Program (NDNP) will allow your content to work on multiple systems. Use metadata and file formats that conform to best practices and other established standards.

Please help!

Rankin House Needs Your Help

The Ohio Historical Society is currently in the process of restoring the interior of the 1829 Rankin House in Ripley, Ohio and has found evidence that at least two of the first floor rooms originally had decorative stenciling applied to the walls. Unfortunately, the evidence of what the full design was is sparse and creating a design for an entire room could quickly cross over into conjecture. The hope is to locate extant examples of stenciling in the vicinity or along the same migration route as the Rankin House (the Ohio River and Zane's Trace). Ideally, OHS will find a house stenciled by the same artist or "school" of artists, with stenciling layouts that use the same couple of patterns at the Rankin House. Any information or leads you might have would be greatly appreciated! For more information, including pictures of what was found at the Rankin House, or to share any information you have, please contact Chris Buchanan, Restoration Project Coordinator, at cbuchanan@ohiohistory.org or 419-496-7243.

News from the Regions

In 100 words or less, do you have outstanding news to share about your organization? Please email it to your regional representative for the next issue of The Local Historian. Contact information for the representatives in your region is on page 2 of this issue. Of course, you are welcome to forward your news directly to the editor of The Local Historian at arohmiller@ohiohistory.org. Rather than serving as a calendar of events, items for News from the Regions are chosen to inspire, connect, and educate the Alliance's members all over Ohio and celebrate notable and imitation-worthy accomplishments of Alliance members.

Region 1

Allen, Defiance, Fulton, Hancock, Hardin, Henry, Lucas, Putnam, Van Wert, Williams, and Wood Counties

Happy 100th birthday to the Putnam County Courthouse! To mark this auspicious occasion, the Putnam County Historical Society published a new book. Putnam County Courthouse, Ottawa, Ohio: Commemorating 100 Years, 1913-2013 chronicles the history of the courthouse and includes pictures of the building throughout its history. Proceeds from the book benefit the society. In addition, the society held a commemorative event in mid-September featuring special tours of the building and speakers. For more information, visit <http://userpages.bright.net/~pchs/>.

Region 2

Ashland, Crawford, Erie, Huron, Marion, Morrow, Ottawa, Richland, Sandusky, Seneca, and Wyandot Counties

The Marion County Historical Society offered visitors a chance to explore five buildings usually closed to the general public with its "Behind Closed Doors Tour." Designed as a fundraiser for the society, the self-guided driving tour was open to the public for one weekend in October. Tour participants went home with a souvenir: a booklet filled with information and pictures about the historical sites they visited. For those wanting even more, the society produced and sold a DVD of pictures, some of which had never before been published. To learn more, go to <http://www.marionhistory.com/>.

Region 3

Cuyahoga, Lake, Lorain, Medina, and Summit Counties

Region 4

Ashtabula, Geauga, Mahoning, Portage, and Trumbull Counties

The Middlefield Historical Society and the Gauga County Public Library recently debuted the first results of their collaborative project to index and copy scrapbooks in the historical society's collection. The more than 30 scrapbooks cover the mid-twentieth century and can be an invaluable resource for genealogists. The public got a chance to see the first ten indexed scrapbooks at a program at the library in August. For more information, visit <https://www.facebook.com/TheDepotAtTheMiddlefieldHistoricalSociety>.

Region 5

Carroll, Columbiana, Harrison, Holmes, Jefferson, Stark, Tuscarawas, and Wayne Counties

The Salem Historical Society and Salem Public Library sponsored a historical scavenger hunt as a fun family activity over the summer. A committee developed a list of 47 historical questions to answer or places to find. Participants had one week to correctly answer as many questions as they could. The winning family, with a perfect 47/47, received a family membership to the historical society and a gift certificate redeemable at the society's gift shop. To learn more, go to <http://www.salemhistoricalsociety.org>.

The Dennison Railroad Depot Museum received a Transportation Enhancement grant from the Ohio Department of Transportation (ODOT) for $400,000. The money will be used to restore the Chesapeake & Ohio Steam Engine 2700 and complete the museum's Pullman Bed and Breakfast. The ODOT grant will cover 80% of the projects' funding, with the Depot required to raise the remaining 20%. For more information, visit <http://www.dennisondepot.org>.

Region 6

Delaware, Fairfield, Fayette, Franklin, Knox, Licking, Madison, Perry, Pickaway, and Union Counties

The Knox County Historical Society recently received a donation of artifacts relating to the Iran Hostage Crisis of 1979-1981. Knox County native Bert Moore was one of the hostages held inside the U.S. Embassy in Iran. His wife donated memorabilia from his time as a hostage including a sweater he wore while a prisoner, letters from well-wishers, posters, banners, and yellow ribbons. To learn more, go to <http://www.knoxhistory.org>.

Auglaize, Champaign, Clark, Darke, Greene, Logan, Mercer, Miami, Montgomery, Preble, and Shelby Counties

The Champaign County Historical Society repurposed one of its most popular exhibits, the Springhills Jail, into a photo booth for its annual Oktoberfest. Festival attendees had the chance to purchase professional black and white photographs of themselves in jail. The society provided wardrobe accessories like hats, bonnets, aprons, badges, and bandanas to lend a period air to the pictures. TECH TIP:

From Film to Digital Part III: Launching Your Own Newspaper Digitization Project

Once you have answered these (Continued from page 5) questions, it will be easier to compare digitization vendors. Create a checklist that outlines what you expect from your vendor in terms of digital deliverables, conformation to standards, and hosting services.

Communication is vital, so select a vendor that you are comfortable with. Do not be afraid to ask questions and ask for references. The best way to get a sense of a vendor's quality and commitment to your project is by talking to other institutions that have already worked with them. Ask for a sample of their work, so you can see if the final product aligns with your vision for the collection.

Funding

Funding a newspaper digitization project can be challenging, but it is possible. Look for federal, state, and local grant opportunities. For example, OHS's History Fund grant program funded two digitization projects in 2013. When applying for funding, one way to make your grant application more competitive is to limit your request to cover the digitization of only a significant time period rather than the whole collection. Phased development is a great way to complete your project.

You might also partner with another institution in your area, such as the library, historical society, or newspaper publisher. Reach out to local philanthropic organizations or civic clubs to see if they might be interested in funding a portion of your project. Rally the public's attention and hold a fundraiser—every little bit helps.

For More Information

Want to learn more about newspaper digitization or find out how you can get your newspapers digitized through the Ohio Historical Society's Ohio Memory Digitization Program? Contact Jenni Salamon, Project Coordinator for the National Digital Newspaper Program

Can I or Can't I Digitize? Copyright and Property Rights

When selecting content for digitization, it is important to determine whether you have the rights to digitize the items and provide online access to them. This can become complicated with newspapers, as you will have to consider who has the copyrights and, if you are working with microfilm, who has the property rights. Every project is different, so it is essential to consult with your legal counsel but some important questions to ask are:

- Copyright: Is the newspaper in the public domain? If not, will the publishers give you permission to digitize the paper?
- Property Rights: Do you have permission from the microfilm creator to digitize the film? Do you have access to duplicate negative microfilm? (For more information about duplicate negative microfilm, see the Tech Tip article from the September/October 2013 issue of The Local Historian.)

Recommendation: If a paper is in the public domain but is still being published in some form today, contact the current publisher to let them know about your plans and ask them to support your project. This could lead to partnerships and opportunities.
